MEMORIAL DAY PARADE & SERVICE

Also many peoples attended the Service in the New Haven Cemetery with a tribute to the many military soldiers who gave the ultimate sacrifice for our freedom. Keynote speaker, the Honorable Judge Amy L. Searcy said it best, "Think for a minute of our fast-paced lives...now contrast that behavior with our movements and motions here today as we entered with music befitting the occasion; we have come here with reverence for the decisions made by the American men and women who sacrificed their lives in battle on American soil and in foreign lands; patriots who have died while on active duty or in training for battle-readiness...they willingly left their homes and their communities and even their homeland to keep us safe in ours. Today we stand in this spot, allowing our memories to support this moment when we whisper, "Thank you".

Grand Marshal and decorated Vietnam Veteran, Larry Smith concluded in his personal reflections, "We all gave some, and some gave all."

This book became the standard of elementary education across the country. The dwelling built in 1833 was the site were this long-age faculty member compiled his famous book. Steve also shared information on the many other historical building on this campus.

REMEMBERING FORT SCOTT

It happens during the summer when lightning bugs appear that our thoughts turn to simpler times. How many children from the surrounding areas, and further away, spent a week at Fort Scott in Crosby Township sometime during their childhood? My husband visited several summers as a boy in the early 1950s, and our daughter spent time there with her friend in the summer of 1986 while in grade school.

The boys' summer camp called Fort Scott, created and operated by the Archdiocese of Cincinnati was the oldest Roman Catholic children's summer camp in the country established in 1922, being first in the Cleves area, then moved to 131 acres of land purchased from John and Ethel Schlemmer in the New Baltimore area in 1924. Later, in 1936, additional land was purchased from the Jurkowitz family who eventually became the caretakers of the camp. The expansion allowed a co-ed summer camp for boys and girls.

Many children had their first experience of horseback riding, archery, swimming, baseball, tennis, volleyball, handcrafts, nature lore, tracking, hiking, campfires, and dances for the boys and girls to come together for an evening.

Fort Scott experienced good times and not so good times. In the 1930s during the depression the camp opened up to house homeless men for the winter, and during WWII the rationing took its toll so the camp closed for two years. In the 1950s the economy improved and additional larger cabins were built to house the increased attendance. Many reunions were held for former staff and counselors through the years, and I am sure many lasting friendships forged among the children who spent time there during their summers.

Sadly, the camp closed for good in 1989. The concerns over pollution with its close proximity to the Fernald plant, contributed to declining attendance, but the place left a legacy of having served over 150,000 children, seven to fifteen years of age, during its existence.
